Dear County Council,

I would like to support the notion of a better, and public, San Juan County buildout plan. The islands are particularly finite when it comes to water, food supply, transportation, energy, garbage... support of all kinds. Given our ferry-based transportation system, all services are particularly susceptible to limits. The notion that the population could grow to 134,000 (plus visitors) is particularly unrealistic. I would strongly support a much lower number and also support a SJC-specific study of island carrying capacity. An impact study is, at the very least, required for further growth to avoid a "collapse of the commons." Please let me know if there is anything the residents of SJC can do to help make this study happen.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Beeman
